Meet Some of Our Teachers

“I learned more in those four days than I did in all three years of high school.”

“I felt more confident about writing papers!”

For more information, please contact:

Mary Zoeller
Department of English
Language and Literatures
470 Millett Hall
(937) 775-2279
english@wright.edu

wright.edu/writingworkshop

August 21–24, 2017
8:30–11:30 a.m.

028 Millett Hall
Wright State University
College of Liberal Arts
Department of English
Language and Literatures

“To tell you the truth, for the first time, I enjoyed writing a paper.”
The workshop introduces you to the activities and expectations of ENG 1100, the first required Wright State core writing course. In the four mornings of the workshop, the week before classes start, you will learn what college instructors expect because they are the same teachers using the same textbooks.

You will experience all the activities in ENG 1100 for an entire college writing project:

- Critical reading
- Writing academic summary
- Developing a topic
- Database research
- Group collaboration
- Drafting, revising, editing
- Receiving feedback from instructors (but with no grades!)

The workshop will get you ready to succeed in other classes too. Our research shows students who take the workshop:

- Get better OVERALL grades their first year
- Are more likely to return to school the next year
- Feel more prepared before classes begin

Payment and Early Housing

Wright State’s Office of the Bursar will charge your account $50 after the workshop. For an additional charge, you can move into campus housing early. Call Residence Life and Housing at (937) 775-4172 for questions about early move-in.