

Please remind your students that the 2020-21 Wright State University Online Scholarship application will be open until Saturday, February 1, 2020, at 11:59 p.m. They can access the online application via WINGS Express by selecting the Student and Financial Aid tab, then clicking on Financial Aid and Scholarships, and then Online Scholarship Application.

The COLA Dean's Office is currently accepting applications for two additional scholarships. Applications for the COLA Leadership Scholarship and the COLA Study Abroad Scholarship are both due Friday, February 21, 2020. For more information regarding these scholarships, please call 775-2233 or email susan.paul@wright.edu. These two scholarship applications require letters of recommendation so now is the time for students to ask faculty to write letters.

WSU's Saxophone Quartet will be the featured chamber musicians with the Sinclair Wind Symphony. They will perform William Bolcom's Concerto Grosso for Saxophone Quartet and Band on Saturday, Dec. 7 at 7:00 pm at Sinclair's Blair Hall Theatre. Admission is free.

It's Doc Night! Wright State Motion Picture production students invite you to the annual Doc Night tonight at 6:30 pm in room 280 of the Creative Arts Center. Junior Motion Pictures students have spent this past semester creating a collection of short documentary films that showcase not only their talents and their passions but also stories that make an impact in our community and beyond. It's always fun to see the world through the eyes of our creative filmmakers.

For the second year in a row, Wright State lighting design graduate Shawn Nielsen has won the Hog Factor competition. The contest is a prestigious national one where teams of collegiate lighting design students go through a series of programming and design competitions using the Whole Hog family of lighting consoles, culminating in a live programming/design exercise at the annual LDI Conference in Vegas. The three finalist teams designed and programmed automated lights in front of a panel of well-known industry professionals. How cool is that!

This week's featured DSAB member is Milo Simpson. A third year Geography major, Milo is passionately involved in two student organizations he has founded on Wright State's campus: Bombball, a semi-competitive sport invented here at Wright State, and Gamma Theta Upsilon, a geographic honors society. Milo is open to many career possibilities, but is mainly focused on a career working with the environment, and would like to pursue his masters in environmental science. He loves football, history, his dog, and collecting vinyls.
