
COLA Monthly

February 2022

We have many events coming up in February.

The UnDesign the Redline exhibition will be on display on the second floor of Dunbar Library. Tour it yourself, visit with a class, or view one of several panels or guest lectures. More information is available below or at wright.edu/redline. Sweat, a Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, opens on February 3 in the Festival Playhouse and runs through February 13. Tickets are available here: Box Office and Current Season | Department of Theatre, Dance, and Motion Pictures | College of Liberal Arts | Wright State University. Two exhibitions are on display in the Stein Art Galleries through March 4: Chris Semergieff: LOCATIONS, LOCATIONS, LOCATIONS! and Artists of the Bowery Gallery. The Gondoliers runs in the Herbst Theatre February 18-20, and concerts by the Chamber Orchestra, Concert Band, and Wind Symphony are scheduled in Schuster Hall. And those are just the ones I know about!

February 25 is the deadline to nominate a deserving colleague for a CoLA award. The information and form is here: Faculty and Staff Awards. Wayne Stark reminds us that he still has funding for student internships. And please remind your students that the deadline to apply for CoLA Leadership or Study Abroad scholarships is February 7th. The application links are both found on the Admission and Aid tab of our home page under Scholarships and Funding.

PANEL DISCUSSION

THE COLOR OF LAW: A FORGOTTEN HISTORY OF HOW OUR GOVERNMENT SEGREGATED AMERICA

As part of Black History Month, and in association with UnDesign the Redline, you are invited to attend and participate virtually in a discussion of Richard Rothstein's award-winning book.

The exhibit, UnDesign the Redline, is a powerful, interactive exhibit on redlining in Dayton and the U.S., touring nationally and hosted by Wright State in the Dunbar Library all February long. Reserve a time to tour the exhibit individually or as part of a group, with or without a docent-led tour.
